

THEODORE ROOSEVELT PAYS ST. LOUIS A VISIT

Ex-President Made Three Speeches Wednesday. Tells Hearers No Man Can Serve Two Masters. Meets With Popular Approval of the People.

True to his word, true to his friends, true to Americanism and just like himself, Col. Theodore Roosevelt did the courage to stand in the hotbed of German-Americans and tell them that they were moral traitors. This speech, which was delivered at the City Club, Wednesday, was one which had not been attended with unusual interest. St. Louis is known as a German town, and while he frequently mentioned the German-American, he also said that he opposed to English-Americans, Irish-Americans, or any other class of people who were not willing to give all to America. As he stood and made a most eloquent appeal for a united people, one could see that he was a jealous patriot, who believed in "America First," last, and always. No divided loyalties would satisfy him.

Those who have heretofore opposed Col. Roosevelt have, since his bold address, fallen in line with his thoughts. It seems at a time like this that the natural instinct of the people is calling for a strong man to head this nation and Roosevelt seems to be the logical man for the place. During his eight hours' stay in St. Louis, he delivered three speeches and each one met the popular approval of the people.

The Social Pirates

The Social Pirates, a series of plots by George Bronson Howard, will be shown at the Booker Washington Theater every Wednesday, beginning June 7. This is not a serial but a series of short stories each one complete in itself and each containing two reels.

The two central characters in "The Social Pirates" are Mona and Mary. They are very attractive young women who have become embittered by the experience of some of their close friends against making generally but particularly against a class of notorious men who make it their business to profit by the weakness of the opposite sex by blackmail and other despicable methods. In fact so embittered have the two girls become that they register a solemn oath to devote their lives to a campaign of retribution against this class.

In Episode No. 1 "The Little Monte Carlo"

Mona and Mary save a beautiful young girl from suicide. They learn from her that she has been jilted by a young man and that he has immediately commenced a campaign in which after inducing him to visit a supposed gambling house where he plays a large sum to make good the fictitious losses of Mona, she has finally to get the wrong he has done the girl he cast off by the clever ruse of a telegram sent in his father's name by Mary commanding him to marry. It is a sensational, thrilling and romantic episode that will keep you enthralled from start to finish and each succeeding episode is just as good or better.

$10,000 MARK REACHED IN Y.M.C.A. FUND

Efforts of the team captains and their teams to have the fund of the Y. M. C. A. reach $10,000 were crowned with success when on last Sunday afternoon, at the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church, the $10,000 mark was realized. This goal required a united effort in the early part of the week the total was some $9000.00, but the men of the teams are used to united effort and crossed the mark by the strong pull. Dr. William L. Perry sent in his check for $100 to help make the $10,000. This means that all of the subscribers of $1,000 or more have begun payments on their pledges.

When the total was called for on Sunday, the fund was $51,000 short, when instantly the captain of team 9, Mr. Brown, and the chairman of the campaign committee, Mr. Williams, volunteered to make up the total.

At this meeting, Mr. Malone, who is a member of the Board of Managers of the Y. M. C. A., spoke most interestingly of the recent trip which he and Mrs. Malone made to visit the Associations in the eastern cities. While away, Mr. and Mrs. Malone visited Cincinnati, Louisville, Washington, Philadelphia and New York Associations.

Mr. Malone spoke most interestingly and told the men who were gathered there that the other cities were expecting St. Louis to go ahead of all records in the matter of collections as they had done in the matter of subscriptions. "Team 14 reported the largest amount on Sunday afternoon and still keep the lead in the collection campaign. The total collections up to date are $10,000.00.

ATTORNEY VAUGHN ADDRESSES HIGH SCHOOL GRADS

Attorney Geo. L. Vaughn delivered the commencement address to the graduates of the Douglas High School at Hannibal, Mo., Friday night, May 27, before a large and enthusiastic gathering of citizens. He reports the work of the school to be first class and says that the citizens of Hannibal are proud of the school and are much pleased with the work of Principal A. C. MacNeil.

In his closing remarks Mr. Vaughn gave the members of the class some wholesome advice which it will be well for them and their friends, fathers and mothers too, to heed.

He said in part: "I know that your greatest contribution to the civilization of the world and the welfare of the human family will be made in honest, earnest and intelligent effort to rid America of prejudice and make it a land of the free and the home of the brave. You must do it by helping to prove that the Negro is worthy of liberty and freedom and deserving of encouragement, help and fair treatment by being industrious, honest, sober, provident and patriotic. You must also help to rid the world of the things which are the cause of segregation, restriction and the closing of the doors of opportunity in your faces. You can aid very little in this great task either by becoming easily discouraged or by souring on the world or by hating your fellow man. Neither can you help by whining, like a whipped cur, or by cowardly, cringing or tame submission to outrage and discrimination. You must play the part of men and women. Stand for right and fight against wrong. Do your duty and then insist that others, no matter who, do theirs by you. On a honest day, stand for an honest day's pay. Exhibit that ability and responsibility that deserve open opportunity and then contend with all your might against those who would shut the door of opportunity in your faces. Acquire yourselves as good, law-abiding, American citizens and then make it possible for you to stand up and defend any one of the benefits of citizenship or abridge your rights as such. It is your right to see the highest and best in life. Seek it and defy anybody who dares hinder you. There is no fixed place in life for you, different from the fixed for other people because of your color or previous condition. Your place is any place which you, by your brain, brawn and ability, can carve out for yourselves. Your motto should be: 'Excelsior, onward, upward, and peril to the man who impedes the way.'"

MRS. HALEY RETURNS

Gives Interesting Account of the Installation of Booker Washington's Successor. Memorial Fund Receives $100,000. Mrs. Haley Receives Enthusiastic and Rousing Reception in East

Mrs. Victoria Clay-Haley

Mrs. Victoria Clay-Haley, Royal Grand Matron, Order Eastern Star, of Missouri Jurisdiction, returned home after a four weeks' tour of the east and south, having visited Tuskegee, where she witnessed the inauguration of the successor of Booker T. Washington, which was very impressive. Special cars come not only from Montgomery and other points in the state, but also from Chicago, Virginia and other points north. The presence of Dr. Washington was greatly missed and as the graduating class sang "And Lang Syne" the thought of the absence of him who had founded this great institution and who had so been called from his labors cast a gloom over all and brought tears to the eyes of not only teacher and student but friends and visitors. But as far as carrying out the general program the spirit of the man was still at Tuskegee Institute.

The sermon was preached by Dr. C. B. Wilmer, Atlanta, Ga., who referred to Dr. Washington as "The Apostle of common sense and good will," and as a "good American." The theme of the commencement program dealt with the rural school, while every graduating student spoke on his trade.

The commencement day opened with a general demonstration of as many fine exhibits as could be staged on the chapel platform, which were many and varied.

The formal address was made by Dr. John B. Russell, principal of Hampton Institute, where both Dr. Washington and Principal Moton were educated. The principal-lect was presented by William G. Wilcox, president of New York City Board of Education. Principal Moton was greeted with enthusiastic applause and pledged himself to carry out the policies inaugurated by Booker T. Washington.

Among the many prominent people present were Julius Rosenwald, whose magnificent gift of $100,000 to the Booker Washington Memorial Fund was announced. Also that of Mr. McCormack, of $25,000. These with other large gifts, including one from the class of '06, of $247,135, make the Washington Memorial Fund total $850,000. Dr. William Jay Schleifman, of New York City, on behalf of the Board of Trustees, presented a bronze bust of Booker T. Washington, which had been presented by Miss Leila Usher, a sculptress of New York City. The bust is to be placed permanently in the chapel of the institute.

The year's enrollment was 917 boys and 647 girls, a total of 1,564 students, who come from 33 states and 20 foreign countries or colonies of foreign nations.

Before going to Tuskegee, Mrs. Haley visited Buffalo, New York and Philadelphia, where she showed the people of the east that Miss Haley knows how to make good—for that she simply captivated the hearts of the people was demonstrated by the enthusiastic and rousing reception that was given to her at every point visited, and the urgent invitations to return. Mrs. Haley sustained her reputation as one of the leading women of the race and as a gifted speaker in her wonderful and inspiring addresses delivered at Buffalo, Philadelphia and at the famous Roosevelt Chapel, East Aurora, New York, the home of the late Elbert Hubbard, now under the management of his son, whose guest Mrs. Haley was.

The largest audience that has ever packed the Michigan Avenue Baptist Church, Buffalo, assembled there to hear the Royal Grand Matron of Missouri and Jurisdiction. The entertainment was planned and managed by Mrs. Mary B. Talbot, who the St. Louis folks will remember was a guest here last summer.

Promptly at 8:30 p. m. the ushers and ribbon bearers, comprising twenty of Buffalo's most popular young folks, led in the Escort Committee of Masses and Eastern Stars, of the Royal Grand Matron, Mrs. Haley. The committee of eight was followed by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Charlotte Dett and Worthy Patron, Mr. James R. Mason, and last the Matron of Honor, who she looked every inch the queen that she is. Over fifty yards of ribbon were used in the display. Master Masons from Niagara Falls, Ithaca, Utica, Syracuse and Boston, and Eastern Stars from Niagara Falls, New Bedford, Mass., and Chicago, were in attendance.

Many social affairs were planned in her honor. Breakfast, with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown, Garner Avenue.

Dinner, with covers laid for fourteen, at the home of Miss Ida D. Fairbush, Buffalo's first colored teacher and principal. Dinner at the beautiful residence of Mrs. Charlotte Dett, of Niagara Falls.

Trip to Chippewa, Ontario.

The Sojourner Truth Club entertained at an elaborate luncheon at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Whitfield Lawrence.

The Phyllis Wheatley Club held a public reception in her honor at the residence of her hostess, Mrs. Mary B. Talbot.

The Entre Tennis Club entertained for her on Wednesday evening.

The largest reception was held by Pyrrhus N. S. H. and A. M. at Knickerbocker Studio. Over 200 were present. The Grand March was led by the Worshipful Master and Mrs. Haley. Sunday, Mrs. Anna R. Mason entertained at dinner, and Sunday evening Mrs. Haley spoke at Bethel A. M. E. Church.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Ruth L. Bennett, president of state federation, of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Haley delivered the principal address on Women's night at the opening and dedication of the New Union Baptist Church at Philadelphia, of which Dr. W. G. Parks is the able pastor. Mrs. Haley also had the pleasure of giving a recital, assisted by Richard B. Harrison, in Chester, Pa., where, Rev. and Mrs. Bennett have charge and are doing a splendid work.

Aside from being head of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Haley is secretary of the National Association of Colored Women and after presiding over the Grand Chapter Meeting, in July at Kansas City, will depart for the east to attend the Biennial, of the National Federation at Baltimore.

LAST IN PEACE, FIRST IN WAR

Just as we go to press we hear rumors of dissatisfaction with the arrangement of the Colored division of the preparedness parade for Saturday afternoon. Last, as usual. Last in peace, first in war. It seems ill fitting to the times that, while the Colored soldiers are being called upon to go to the front in Mexico and lead the hunt for Villa, Colored citizens should be simultaneously relegated to the rear in a demonstration intended to express the sentiment of the people in a demand for better protection of our flag and better preparedness. Public opinion seems all out of joint. Prejudice, not patriotism, is dominant. Loyalty is only a sham where a people are divided against themselves, where race bitterness, separating the nationalities, affords not a union. We are all Americans and as Americans and Americans only we can assure the safety of the United States.

THE HYPHEN

The hyphen is playing a conspicuous part in the moulding of public sentiment at present. This little character, used to unite nationalities or graft ancestry to Americans, has raised the question of loyalty. The Negro has always been hyphenated. He has been called Afro-American. It is the prevailing usage in designating the American colored man. Yet his hyphen has never been questioned.

The Negro's ancestry extends back 300 years in this country, and he belongs to the oldest generations that enter into the citizenship of our republic. Although Jim-Crowed and segregated in many places no one has ever had the audacity to accuse him of treason or disloyalty. He has always been the first to rise in defense of his country and the last to leave the battlefield.

Col. Roosevelt and "The Post-Dispatch" are not mincing words, nor are they pussy-footing.

THE TWO BIG CONVENTIONS

The two big quadrennial conventions, Republican and Democratic, are about to convene, select their preference for president and vice-president and offer platforms built of planks of national sentiments to be subjected to the people in November for their approval.

Will some delegate have the courage to make an effort to have inserted an anti-lynching plank? Will some statesman be the instigator of this move to rid the country of its most heinous and barbarous crime, to remove forever its stain from our civilization? Make lynching a federal offense.

THE CITY PLAYGROUNDS

Are the parents, the teachers, the clergy, the professional men, the business men, the laymen of the Negro race in this city satisfied with the conditions that exist at the playgrounds? The only two playgrounds located in the communities where most of the attendance is the Colored youth of the city are the last to open and the poorest kept. This looks like a small matter perhaps in the eyes of some, but it is a vital question to every Negro in this city. It seems to be the highest ambition of each city official to have it said of him when he goes out of office that he did the least for the Negro.

You should protest against this discrimination in the using of the public funds. You should know who is responsible for this condition. Are you disposed to sit quietly by and allow your rights taken from you without a protest? No! No! Never!

AMERICA'S UNREST

There is much being said by public men and the press about races, stirring up race feelings and racial issues in connection with the hyphen-Americans. Each attempt on the part of one race to tell the other the best thing to do for the preservation of peace only serves to widen the breach, and arouse more racial antagonism among themselves. No one class has any confidence in the other, and thus a great unrest among the people is manifested more and more each day—the social unrest, the industrial unrest, the commercial unrest and the political unrest—all of which are stepping-stones to a great upheaval among the people of this country. There can be no rest until the nation learns to respect her most humble citizens; there can be no preparedness as long as racial questions and racial antagonism are constantly agitated. There can be no peace until we have peace among ourselves.

If Roosevelt is nominated on the Grand Old Party ticket at Chicago, the wishes of the masses will be carried out.

ST. JAMES NOTES

Despite the threatening weather, a large congregation filled the auditorium and lecture room of St. James, last Sunday morning, to hear their pastor, Dr. Peck, who has just returned from Philadelphia, where he attended a masterly session on "God's Keeping Power." He gave "Echoes from the General Conference," at the evening service Sunday, June 4th, he will preach at the "Stars of Ethiopia." If you would hear the origin of this stupendous paganism be in your seats at 11 o'clock.

REVEL TREND OF CURRENTS

Travel of Bottles Dropped Into the Ocean Curren Information to the Navy Departments.

The hydrographic bureau of the navy department is always interested in endeavors to ascertain, by means of bottle messages, information as to the movements of the oceans. These bottle messages, information as to the movements of the oceans. These bottle messages, information as to the movements of the oceans. These bottle messages, information as to the movements of the oceans.

Knowing from their records where bottles had been thrown overboard, the bureau has been able to trace, in a general way, the path they must have followed in order to reach the places where they were found. In one report alone there were published the adventures of over one hundred bottles.

Being partially filled with air and then securely corked, the bottles float on the surface of the water and go wherever the wind and the current of the sea carry them. Each bottle contains a record of the place and the date of its starting. Some of those found have floated for many months, and some, in years, and have traveled thousands of miles.

It has been found that bottles dropped overboard between the shores of the United States and England or France usually travel toward the northeast, following the course of that great river in the Atlantic ocean, the Gulf stream. Bottles started off the west coast of Africa travel, as a rule, westward until they arrive among the West India islands. Along the European side of the ocean the bottle takes a southerly course and along the American side a northerly course.

WORLD OWES DEBT TO THESE

Macadam, Pioneer of Good Roads, and His Contemporary, Telford, Worthy of All Gratitude.

The first great improvement in highway construction within modern times was effected by John Loudon Macadam.

Macadam, who was born in Ayr, Scotland, in 1756. This great Scotch engineer was the inventor of the road-making system known as "macadamizing," which is still in general use, although vastly improved. Macadam died in 1836, at the age of eighty. When he was born the turnpike roads of England and Scotland were in an incredibly bad state. Macadam and his contemporary, Telford, were the first to bring the prevailing chaos and to bring scientific methods and regular system to bear upon the building, repair and maintenance of highways. Macadam was engaged chiefly in the repair of existing roads rather than the construction of new ones, and the improvements which he inaugurated were of great and lasting value, only to his native land, but to the world at large. Telford insisted upon the use of broken stones in road building, while Macadam insisted that this was unnecessary and that the subsoil would carry any weight if made properly drained and kept dry by an impervious covering.

Forming Habit.

We believe in the greatest freedom for the youth, we believe in a happy environment that will create noble characters; we believe the spirit of the boy should be held sacred and not crushed by the achievement of higher things in life than social gossip and amusement, and we believe that the encouragement of pool playing as an adjunct of the public schools, it makes no difference how many boards of education, committees, public meetings, may favor it, is a mistake. The idea that we must resort to games to hold the boys to their school work carries with it the implication that our school methods are wrong, and there can be no other justification of pool playing in school rooms than that impression. Education should be a broad world-wide road. It should be as free as the air on the prairies. It should never be contracted to a narrow, cramped, and materialistic age—Columbus (O.) Journal.

Practice Loving.

Practice loving everyone you meet, being really with a kind word or a gentle act. Try to lift up the poor, and measure the joy of those three days and you will never be willing to give up the habit altogether. It is not mean that we should care for the welfare of all humanity. No immortal person is to be won without the dust and heat of battle. But what are precious daily, being with us, we go to the altar—Louise Collier Wilcox.

FORCE IN THE COMMUNITY

Man With the "Talent for Silence" Generally Recognized for Strong Percentage He Is.

There is a "gift of gab" and there is a "talent for silence." Everybody classifies someone here and there as "gabs." Those who say nothing because they have nothing to say; those who have nothing to say, but say it; those who have something to say, but say it, and those who say nothing in spite of having something to say. The last named class, rare as a white unicorn in Boston Globe. It behooves those who have the "gift of gab" to strive for the "talent for silence," and those who have the "talent for silence" to try to acquire some "gift of gab."

But better a thousand gabbers than the silence of one cold, cunning man who entices the student and generous people to do all the talking in order that he may conceal his cards while they show theirs. That silence is common among men whom authority and wealth have made crafty.

Character speaks a language of its own. The silent man does not need to speak in order to make himself heard. He "senses" the man without opening his mouth. The man who is without planning; who can take a great deal of insult without retorting; who can endure mismanagement without a word of the silks—the man who keeps his mouth shut and saws wood—he is such a force in the community as the little dreams of being. It is not anything that he does; it is what he is.

NOTHING LOST BY COURTESY

May at Times Mean a Small Thing, But It Has the Power of Accomplishing Much.

Courtesy is like oil upon troubled waters. There is an inevitable amount of friction in the life of a man, and it reduces this friction to a minimum. The happy outcome of a day's work may easily be determined by a cheery "Good morning" at its beginning. A knitted brow and a grudging greeting may be harbingers of failure in the day's work.

In the elevator, at the telephone, at the bench and in the office—at every point of contact between man and man—there is a certain amount of friction. Others is a pleasant lubricant in the joints of life. It reduces the jar of the human machinery, promotes good feeling, and leads to the world's stock of respect.

It is better to request than to command, better to smile than to frown, better to help than to hinder even in the smallest things. A courteous man and a courteous woman furnish the salt that makes life palatable to the soul.

Our common allotment of happiness, of contentment, of the joy of living is all too small. By rubbing those about us with the oil of courtesy, we rob ourselves in the long run. Let us instead of detract from it. Let us respect scrupulously the small rights of others; regard for the big rights will then become a matter of habit.

The Oldest of Trees.

As to the ages of trees, it is not the oak which is the oldest or the acorn, but the "patriarch." The oldest trees on earth are the tremendous oaks standing in one of the California valleys. Older than Abraham they have rolled around with the world, alive, for many more centuries than any more oak and not long ago one of them fell. There he lies, and you climb his side by a ladder. And the rest—or many of them—are in their last days. The old tree is evident from their dwindling tops.

That is what surprises the tourist—that having lived through human history, they should be dying. They are not cared for, if this is true, and so August can be a dry one. They are not cared for, if this is true, and so August can be a dry one. They are not cared for, if this is true, and so August can be a dry one.

Shakespeare's Mixed "Population."

It is impossible to overstate the influence on the view of government and the view of life of Shakespeare's population is as mixed as our own. He had the American manner, with a myriad-minded past, and the more varied and variable present. Shakespeare and the American Spirit. Dr. Frank W. Gunsalus, in National Geographic.

In loving memory of our dear father, Thomas Moore, who departed this life June 5, 1910.

Time rolls on, it will not stay, How we felt since that sad day, With one so loving, kind and true, How hard it was to part with you.

In the graveyard softly sleeping, Where the flowers gently wave Lies the one we love so dearly, In his lonely, silent grave.

All the world is gray with shadows, Clouds have dimmed the sunset glow, Just six years, father, since you left us, Yet it seems so long ago.

Sadly missed by Tomella, Vanita and Robert Moore, children.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, who departed this life one year ago June 1, 1915.

A precious one from us has gone, And we are lonely without him, Place a flower in our hearts, Which never can be filled, Sadly missed by wife and son, Gertrude Shaw.

MAY YET DYE SILK IN LEAF

Experiments Have Almost Convinced Scientists That Such a Thing Is Within Range of Possibility.

Silk is the secretion of two glands of the silkworm lying alongside the digestive canal. These glands, which consist of numerous coiled tubes, terminate in a spinning whorl. From a common orifice in the spinning whorl the secretion of the consistency of honey issues forth, promptly hardening into a thread on exposure to the air. Usually the silk is colorless on leaving the body of the silkworm, but sometimes it is straw yellow or greenish. Why? The thread has been a matter of long dispute. Some claim that the larva itself produces the color; others ascribe it to impurities acquired upon secretion; still others are of the opinion that the green color of the leaves of the mulberry tree is the cause. Two French scientists, Lervat and Comte, determined to settle the dispute. They fed silkworms on mulberry leaves which had been saturated with nonpoisonous aniline red and aniline blue. What was the result? Not only were the silkworms turned red or blue but their secreted silk assumed the respective colors. Who knows but some day we may be dyeing silk in the leaf instead of in the vat?

KNOW COIN BY ITS SOUND

Observant Proprietor of Store Had a Faculty Which Saved Him a Good Deal of Time.

There are all sorts of labor-saving devices, patented and unpatented, but now and again a new one bobs up unexpectedly. Here is a sample:

The man who was shy of coin dropped in at a haberdasher's to buy a couple. He made his selection, and the proprietor walked with them to the rear of the shop, where the roll of wrapping paper was kept.

The customer, meantime, extracted half a dollar from his nearest pocket and slipped it some what noisily on the glass top of a showcase.

"You said two dollars, didn't you?" quoth the haberdasher.

"Yes, two," replied the customer. A few seconds later the proprietor returned, not only with the collars, but with the exact change, a 25-cent piece.

"How did you guess that?" asked the wondering customer. "You didn't see me put down this half?"

"No," said the shopkeeper; "but I heard it hit the counter, and I knew it was a half as good as it struck. Being able to make change by sound saves me a good many steps in the course of a day."

Insurance Risks.

Many pathetic revelations are hidden in the records of a life insurance company that have simulated discussions of old-age pensions. The actuary delivers into the hands of comparative statistics, and yet how little they actually know except of past events. The medical examiners study every phase of human activity and the risks involved. Yet a record of the average medical examination would seem a sorry show if all the paradoxical facts were presented of how many times they "miss their guess." Several young men I know of as poor risks twenty-five or thirty years ago, and yet are living today, apparently hale and hearty. I know of others who were taken as perfect risks, only to pass away in a month, a year, or so. Which shows that, after all, "there's a divinity that shapes our course, and in our own plain ways, it leads us on, where it will shape our course accurately. The immutable laws which govern life and death—"Let's Talk It Over," National Magazine.

Lost Skill of the Ancients.

From the earliest periods of which we have historical records one of the most striking features has been to lift heavy loads rapidly and efficiently. Some of the greatest monuments of antiquity were built under conditions that involved lifting of heavy pieces of building material to great heights, but how it was done we do not know to this day. The manner in which the great stones were raised to their places in the pyramids in Egypt has always been a mystery and probably always will be. It is certain, however, that the builders of these wonderful monuments were possessed of mechanical contrivances that were lost in the dark ages intervening between their time and ours, or they possessed patience to a more remarkable degree than is exhibited in any race of men at the present time.—Engineering Magazine.

Discovery of Soap.

Soap appears to have been discovered by the Celts, for the name is derived from the Celtic word "sapo." It seems strange that such early savages should have been familiar with soap, if they had the name they must certainly have had the article in stock. Moreover, it is quite conceivable that nomads using wood fires could accidentally discover soap. All the world has a certain amount of mineral salts, chiefly those of potash, in their soils. After burning these soils, the residue of potash, which is a heavy burden of rain would dissolve into a liquid lye, wanting only the grease from an overfed calf or dog to make it soap. The death of natural curiosity on the part of the woman who cleaned up the mess would reveal the cleansing properties of the new substance.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON

By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of Bible Studies, Chicago.

LESSON FOR JUNE 4.

THE CALL OF THE WEST.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16: 1-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come ye into Macedonia and help us.—Acts 16: 9.

Following the commission's report at Antioch of the decision of the Jerusalem church, Paul and Barnabas and others continued their evangelism in that city (ch. 14:19). Then, leaders seen the need of revivifying the scenes of their former labors (v. 26), but when it came to the organization of their party, Paul refused to concede the decision of Barnabas that John Mark should accompany them (v. 37, 38, see Acts 15:37). So sharp a contrast arose that the two parties were organized. That Paul later forgave Mark is evidenced by his tender reference to him.

I. A Cleave Door, Ch. 16:1-15. Paul's companions for this second missionary tour were Silas (v. 40), Luke (see use of word "we," v. 11), and Timothy (v. 1-3). The latter came of good ancestry, had good training and was of good report, still to avoid contention he submitted to the rite of circumcision. Paul's work was to promulgate the Jerusalem decision to establish or to confirm the churches and to add to these churches new converts. But that did not mean fullfill Paul's commission (v. 15). The word "Asia" (v. 6) means the Roman province of Asia and, wisely obeying the Spirit's direction, Paul passed on until he came to the sea coast of Asia. At a later time Paul spoke the "word of the Lord Jesus" in Asia with wonderful effect (v. 19, 20, 26, 27). It must have been that the bones of Paul thus to be restrained, but it did not serve as an excuse for him to take a vacation, but rather to seek new fields wherein to preach. Thus he came to Troas.

II. The Macedonian Call, v. 9-13. Paul had several epoch-making visions; on the Damascus road (9:3-4, 26-29); in Jerusalem (23:11); at the time of his shipwreck (27:23); and the one we are now considering. A vision is a knowledge of the need and of the resources at one's command. Grecian beauty, philosophy, culture were needed. Christ as a resource was adequate and available to supply that need. This vision Paul saw: through it God called him to Macedonia. "We" (the first use of that pronoun in the book of Acts), Paul and Luke, immediately assayed to obey.

III. The Open Door, v. 14, 15. On what seeming trifles does history turn! An outcast, wandering Jew, coming to help a proud, cultured, influential foreign city, but he bears the Gospel which alone can be of help to them. Paul did not wait to "investigate the field" nor to establish a working organization. He was a better point of contact, and that was to find those in that city who knew God even though ignorant of Christ. He began by preaching to the most comparative religions, nor did he seek to found "community centers" with soup kitchens and social uplift. Paul knew that to elevate the individual by establishing him in the faith of Christ would soon result in community uplift. On the other hand, a faith which envelops its workers and does not give tangible, concrete evidence in works may well be challenged as to its being genuine. There was no supernatural direction as to what part of Macedonia Paul was to visit, and exercising his common Paul went at once to the principal city. He did not begin at Thessalonica to preach the Gospel (v. 12, v. 17), but waited and watched for an opportunity, doubtless praying much for a favorable opening (Ch. 18: 14; 17:3; 18:4).

The "man of Macedonia" seems to have been a woman unless we consider the Philippian church. This open-air meeting was one of the most notable in history. The Lord opened the heart of the woman and it was the turning point of the evangelization of Europe and America and the world. God must open the hearts of men and women (John 6:44; Eph. 1:17; 18; Luke 24:45), and this he is doing and glad to do. The steps of this woman's conversion are clearly marked and present a good type. (1) She went out to pray (v. 13). (2) She heard the word (v. 14; see also John 5:24). (3) She had her heart opened by the Lord (v. 14). (4) She gave heart to the things which were spoken (v. 15 and Mark 16:16). (5) She made public confession of her new-found faith by baptism. (6) She carried with her the whole household, perhaps children, and went in her business and servants (v. 21-23; I Cor. 1:16).

The use of the word "constrained" in verse 15 indicates a heart hungry to be helped by being allowed to serve. The Philippian church often helped Paul subsequently and doubtless Lydia was a leading spirit in such service. The history of the Christian church relates many illustrations of the leadership and prominence of women of wealth and culture.

Finding the Bride

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL, Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

TEXT—But thou shalt go unto my country, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son Isaac.—Gen. 24:1.

The twenty-fourth chapter of Genesis contains the account of the servant seeking a bride for his son Isaac. The chapter is, containing of verses, and this fact has led many Bible students to feel that the seeking of Isaac's bride is typical of some spiritual truth. Such Bible students agree that the chapter well illustrates the work of the Holy Spirit, who is sent forth by God the father to call out the bride, which is the bride of him, typified by Isaac, even Jesus Christ, our Lord. Since the Holy Spirit came into this sacred work, the chapter under consideration furnishes many points of instruction for the student.

First of all, we note that Abraham's servant was anxious for the glory of his master. He prays, "Show kindness to thy servant, O Lord, as thou hast done to me." This motive will affect many things in our Christian service. On one occasion, after a sermon, remarkable from the literary standpoint, given at other ways, one of the hearers remarked, "What beautiful language the preacher used." True servants of Christ are anxious for the glory of their master, and this motive will affect many things in our Christian service. On one occasion, after a sermon, remarkable from the literary standpoint, given at other ways, one of the hearers remarked, "What beautiful language the preacher used." True servants of Christ are anxious for the glory of their master, and this motive will affect many things in our Christian service.

Notice again, that the servant of Abraham received guidance. He was led to the well where Rebekah watered her flocks and she was pointed out to him as the bride for his master. As the servant expressed it, "I being in the way, the Lord led me." The writer has a friend who was a pastor in a southern town. He longed for the salvation of a man who had come to the country, but although he visited his house, he seemed never to find an opportunity to speak with him privately concerning his soul. On one occasion, this minister was impressed that he should pay a special visit in the hope of reaching the man in question. As the impression persisted, he took the train and finally reached the house. It looked as if no one were at home and he began to chide himself for his foolish trip. Nevertheless, he rapped at the door, which was opened by the man he wished to see and who welcomed him heartily, saying, "I am all alone today and was just wishing that you would come here and tell me how to become a Christian." Undoubtedly God still leads his servants.

Again the servant gave gifts to Rebekah, jewels of silver, jewels of gold and raiment. How happy it is that Christian workers, though poor, as Paul was, may make many rich and happy the Christian worker who has nothing better to give than bread and soap and clothes. Abraham's servant gave to Rebekah the earnest of her faith and blessing to all those to whom they minister.

We may say a word, also, about the bride. It will be noted that the servant found her by the well of water. These words may fall under the eye of someone who is sighing to become a member of the bride of Christ. May not the incident under consideration suggest to him that he should be found by the well of water, which may hint at the means of grace. When Charles Spurgeon was seeking to know the love of Christ, he went from church to church throughout London, trusting that the word of some minister might bring to him the blessing he sought. He at last found peace in a Primitive Methodist chapel, where he had taken shelter from a snowstorm one Sunday morning.

And what a lesson is conveyed by the fact that as soon as Rebekah was being and bracelet upon her hand, she ran and told them of her mother's house all that Abraham's servant had said. As has our pit, we must give our reason away or else give it up. Would that all of us were as busy in spreading the good tidings as was Uncle John Vassar. Dr. A. J. Cronin tells of once driving along a country road with this good man. A gentleman stopped them to inquire the way to Dedham. After the directions were given, Uncle John Vassar turned to the man and said, "Friend, I too am a stranger and pilgrim in the earth, but I am seeking a better country, a heavenly. All that we can do is to journey thither." It was done so naturally and sincerely that the man stood as if spellbound under this gracious answer.

FOUR STAR ACTS AT THE BOOKER
WASHINGTON THEATRE THIS WEEKMadam Fairfax and her son, Harry Stafford, are easily the feature of this week, in one of the best shows seen at the Booker Washington Theater in many months. These two are the same of class, their talent far surpassing the ordinary vaudeville performer. In fact Madam Fairfax ranks as a vocalist with the greatest Colored prima donna history has produced. In her song numbers this week she adds a neat bit of real comedy that gives life and lightness to her selections, but does not detract from the real artistic temper of her work. The result is a treat for the patrons that is rare indeed. Her range is wonderful. It is especially conspicuous in her rendition of "I'll Trotter" in three voices.
Harry Stafford is a graceful comedian and good dancer. The team is making a decided hit. Every number is heartily applauded and they are compelled to answer several encores.Harper Pugsley opens the show with an exhibition of comic cartoon work that is good. He follows with an artistic acrobatic dance that is in a class by itself and goes big. Pugsley is a St. Louis boy.Jack Morrison and Company in a whip act, is a decided novelty. After doing some high jumping and other acrobatic stunts with his horse, Morrison makes a series of crack shots in his long-whip that are marvelous. It is the only act of the kind on the stage.
Cammy and Grant present a line of comedy, music and dance that is up-to-date and very entertaining. They are real footlight artists and are scoring nicely. The act closes strong with a lively dance.The annual field day exercises of the Colored grade schools will be held Tuesday, June 6, in connection with the Summer High Field Meet on High School Field.SIMMONS SCHOOL PICNIC
The 39th annual Simmons School seen in each number rendered. Special mention: The dance, "Polka Miniature" by Misses Alberta Mer-rison, Hazel O'Hara, Marie Boaz and Glady Lucas. Also the dance, "Firefly" by Miss Lovin Bell. The musical numbers were well rendered. The participants were all Lincoln High School

RUBE FOSTER AND HIS AMERICAN GIANTS COMING

Mount Olive Team Plays Sunday

"The Giants will meet the famous Mount Olive Team at Brock's Park Sunday. This is the club that beat the Giants last summer. The game promises to be one of the most interesting of the season. Saturday the Jefferson Barracks Club will meet the Giants at the same place."On Monday Rube Foster and his American Giants will open a five game series here. There is always a strong rivalry between the St. Louis and Chicago clubs and a hard-fought series is always the result. All games will start at 3:15.The Giants were two games in Belleville Decoration Day, 5 to 2 and 11 to 10. Gregory was on the mound in the first game and was good all through.
Wade was knocked out of the box in the second game and was replaced by Jimmie Lyons. The Giants had a hard fight to win, as the Belleville boys had six runs before Wallace and Company began to score. Blackwell and Warfield, the new members of the team, were the stars of the game. Mills has signed Robert Saly, a new pitcher from Oklahoma City.It was a big, gilly crowd that saw the opening game at Brock's Park last Sunday. The K. of P. band enlivened the gathering and the game was preceded by a big parade.Owner Brock deserves the full patronage of the fans, for he made a big sacrifice for the sake of the sport among Colored people. He states that he was not ousted from the Interstate League, but withdrew because the league refused to play the first game in double headers on Sundays.REYNOLDS AND ROBINSON WILL ENTERTAIN AT KEYSTONE GARDEN OPENINGReynolds and Robinson (Speck 10) will be the principal attractions at the opening of the Keystone Garden, at Compton and Lawton, Monday night, June 5. Manager Mills is planning to make the 1916 summer season the banner one of all. Monday night will be Serpentine Night and several special features including souvenirs are promised. Miss Missouri May, the dancing soprano, will also render several selections.FIELD DAY EXERCISES
